update on the events after Zeek Rewards

Greetings everyone!

As you know, August 16, 2012 (the day Zeek Rewards was shut-down) seems like a long time ago, and many things have happened, alleged to have happened, and honestly -- just never could have happened.

Sadly we have seen rumors and attempts to confuse all Zeek Affiliates and separate them from their hard-earned money. Please understand that the purpose of this email is to provide you with some valuable updates and help you navigate the mountain of information (and disinformation) that has circled the web over the last 14 months.

So, let's put some rumors to rest. First of all ... "is Zeek Rewards coming back?" Sadly the answer is "no." The harsh reality is, back on the 15th of August 2012, when Paul Burks voluntarily signed over ALL the assets of Rex Venture Group – it was just like reaching over and flipping a "kill-switch" and Zeek was officially history.

Second ... "was Zeek Rewards a Ponzi scheme?" As of the date of this email, there has been NO court action to support or prove that Zeek Rewards was a Ponzi scheme!

The simple fact is, the reason why the Receiver attempted to get Affiliates to "voluntarily" turn over and give-back their earnings, was to help the Receiver build his case regarding "unregistered securities."

Keep in mind, it was “alleged” that the operation of the Revenue Share program was nothing more than a sale of unregistered securities. Again, this argument has NOT been proven in court.

Third ... “is it true that the Receiver is offering to make deals with certain Affiliates (with large earnings) with a “promissory note” to pay back a reduced amount over time?” The answer is “yes.”

CAUTION! Although the promissory note option may sound tempting ... you might want to think twice. Currently, NO motion(s) have been filed, and to enter into such a “promissory note” document with the intention of defaulting on the agreement may place you in a criminal proceeding -- when as of now, this is a civil action.

With your permission, over the next few weeks we would like to continue to update you about the case, as well as provide recommendations of new opportunities that may be able to help you and your family recover your loss of income and the hope for a better tomorrow.

On the other hand, if you’d choose not to stay informed, you may opt-out by replying to this email with the word “opt-out” in the subject line.

We look forward to helping you to make the best informed decisions and quickly put the challenges of the past 14 months behind you.

Sincerely
